

Abstract of the DisclosureCOMPUTERIZED PROVISION OF PROFESSIONAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

A system, method, and computer readable medium for providing professional and administrative services to clients (102) via computer, comprising first computing means (103) by which potential clients (101) obtain access to register with the system; second computing means (104), partitioned into a plurality of private areas, wherein each private area is dedicated to a single client (102), other clients (102) not being granted access to said private area; and third computing means (106) to which the provider (105) of services has access but the clients (102) do not have access. The services may be the formation and organization of a corporation. The invention is most fully described in conjunction with the formation and organization of a Bermuda corporation.